

INSIGHTS
March 2011

Dear Friend:

As I was preparing to write this newsletter, I found myself remembering with a smile the way I was feeling as I wrote the newsletters during the first few months of 2010. I recall that I just kept repeating, “Oh, my gosh! What a year this is going to be! I’ve never seen such escalation of intensification!” And now, we’ve entered into 2011, and I’m not saying, “Oh, my gosh!” I’m saying, “OH.....MY.....GOD!!!!”

As I projected my attention through the year 2011, I was just blown away (a phrase my grandchildren use frequently that seems totally apropos right now). The intensification of energies and the events that I foresee in this year are all of the things that I have been telling you about/predicting to you over the past thirty years, and SO much more than I could ever have imagined. I recall that thirty years ago, when I began to tell you that we were moving into a time of cultural polarization, that as we increased dialog about racial acceptance and world harmony, people’s hearts would be filling with distrust and hatred of each other. They would teach that hatred to their children. They would isolate, create borders and boundaries, and form armies or gangs to defend their territory and their “honor” from each other. Many scoffed or told me that I was downright crazy when I warned them that our children would carry weapons on the streets of American cities and towns to protect themselves from other Americans who lived outside their territorial borders or were of different races or cultures....or even from each other. And those same people told me that it could never happen when I warned them that we were moving into a time of world unrest, of chaotic energies beyond any that we have ever experienced in this dimension....that we would experience riots in the streets of cities throughout the world, brothers fighting brothers....that we would experience breakdowns of structures that provide security (religious structures, political structures, financial structures, etc.).

I’ve been telling you these things for so many years that I began to feel as though I were a broken record, and I’m sure that many of you felt the same. But I had to keep repeating these warnings because the energies that would create this powerful world transition just kept on building. Events kept on happening with greater and greater frequency and with more and more intensity. I can't even begin to tell you how amazed I was to see that most of the people of this world just seemed numbed and either totally unaware, uncaring, or disbelieving that the situation building right before their eyes was in fact happening. As I have said in other newsletters, I had the feeling that most people felt that they were sitting in a theater, watching a movie, and that none of this was real – that they would just be able to get up and walk out and it would no longer be the reality.

It is now impossible to maintain the pretenses. It IS the reality. We are living the chaotic intensification that takes us into total world change. We are in the midst of the ending of a time. I'm not saying that the world is coming to an end, but I AM saying that the world as we have experienced it is coming to an end. I AM saying that fifty years from now, we will be living in an entirely new and different world.

The world changes and the emotional responses to those changes fill our television screens, our newspapers, our magazines. People have awakened, and that vague, free-floating sense of anxiety that they have been feeling for the past few years is now being experienced by many as outright terror.

In the midst of all this uncertainty and unrest, there also are people who are gathering together throughout the world with the intent of unifying in harmony to offer themselves in service to those who are suffering. All that has held us to superstition, to lies, to giving up our power to other men who claim Spiritual, emotional, or intellectual superiority is crumbling around us. Out of the ashes of this destruction comes a new/ancient realization that God IS, and we ARE of God, and that nothing in this world truly matters except us and our ability to learn to live in loving respect and harmony with each other. That is the purpose of ALL mankind, and that is the intent of the time toward which we are moving. In order to get there, hidden things MUST be revealed, corruption MUST be eradicated....and those who seek power and control over us through lies and/or coercion MUST be displaced. It's not up to us to make these changes – these changes ARE happening. It is OUR task to be present and to begin and end each day offering ourselves to the task of being of service to Spirit and striving to insure that in each day, any person whose life is touched by ours...is benefited by having been in our presence.

I find it interesting that I am compelled to say that we'll be living in a "new world" when in fact, it is apparent to me that this "new world" pulls us back into the realization of old truths. It brings us back to basics. It requires that we recognize and release our attachments to beliefs that have held us hostage and moved our lives in directions that distanced us from each other and from Spirit. This new world that we enter into creates world harmony, for those who would choose to live their lives filled with hostility, desiring to harm others or to empower themselves over others....those who cannot see and know the value of every life – whatever form it might take – and know that Spirit resides within all things....any person who would in THIS time have the possibility of being sent to prison for doing harm to another....would not be able to live – could not survive – in the time we are preparing to enter. The quality of their Beings could not come to harmony with that place, and they could not survive there.

This may sound totally crazy to you, but I am saying to you that I am absolutely convinced that we are preparing to enter into a corridor of time in which there exists Peace, Respect, Love, Universal Harmony, and a complete recognition and understanding of the depths of each others' Beings. As we move toward that time, we are experiencing heightened sensitivity, increased intuition, and a greater knowing of ourselves as Spiritual Beings. As I've said before, the Veil is lifting between this dimension and the next one. We are coming into a state of Being in which we often don't need words to communicate. We "hear" the sound of each other's Souls.

I know this sounds like an airy fairy fantasy. I thought it did also when I first began to have these knowings....but all of the knowings that I've been given – beginning in the 1970's and that I've been telling you about in my newsletters since then – are coming to pass. All of the things that are in this time – the Earth changes, the intuitive awakening, the polarization of thought and belief that separates and antagonizes....are not only happening but are accelerating. We think that all that is occurring now is beyond belief, but I must tell you: we'll look back a year from now and think that today was peaceful in comparison....and two years from now, even more so. It's such a strange thing that we are living in a time of war and hatred and chaos, and in the midst of this, Spirit is blossoming and filling this world as it has in no other time, reminding me of the awe I felt as a child as I saw a buttercup blooming through the snow.

There's one matter that I feel I must tell you about. I believe that we are much safer in this world if we are given understanding of all that is....if we can see the hand that moves the puppet. It IS important for us to not only think, but to KNOW that most of the chaos that is happening in this world in this time is being orchestrated by a few people who desire power and control. Those people hold great wealth. They are the “power behind the thrones” of this world. In this time, they have decided to inspire distrust, fear and insecurity in the hearts of people throughout the world. Through propaganda, they strive to convince us all that our neighbors are our enemies. Their intent is to separate us from each other so that we won't feel the strength of mutual support, and thereby disempower us.

Most of the people of this world believe their propaganda and are deeply affected by the fear and hatred that they have been bombarded with through the media, and so they come together in small groups born of mutual fear, hatred and distrust of others. The more they separate themselves, the more certain it is that their fear and their rigidity will cause such an intensity of energy that it will finally explode outward. As it is now beginning to explode outward, we are seeing battles in our streets. People who have cultural differences, religious differences, political differences - whatever is “different” - is deemed to be wrong or even evil and is seen as threatening.

There is such fear in the world now that in many homes, family members fear other family members. Women fear their husbands. Parents fear their children, and children fear their parents. Neighbors fear their neighbors, and certainly those of different religious or political ideologies believe that those who are different must then be evil....must be the enemy....must be conquered. So we live in a time of violence.....people in the streets shouting, demanding change, but not knowing what the change should BE. They just want it to be different, but they don't know how to make it different or what “different” should look like.

So, for a time – in this time, in this year, and for the next years before us, we see a few who hold great power in the world, courting our children....urging them to go to the streets, offering themselves in peaceful protest for change. So our idealistic youth go to the streets, calling for change – again, not knowing what that change should be, but just knowing that things should somehow be different. And those same people - who court our children and urge them to the streets in peaceful protest - then seek to rally those who believe that change must come through violence. They convince the violent ones that the peaceful protesters are a threat to their lives, to their ways of living and being....that those youths seek to take from them their securities – their jobs, their homes, etc. They incite rage and hatred. They send the violent ones forth to attack the peaceful ones, and the blame for the attack is placed upon whatever political or religious leader - whatever “king” they are trying to topple from his/her throne to disempower.

It’s a cruel game they play, courting the peacemakers and rallying the warriors, calling them to battle each other. And when all is destroyed, THEIR intention is to enter in, wearing the robes of peacemakers, riding their white horses and shouting promises of change so that THEY may claim the power....for their intent is world dominance.

All of these things that I’m saying to you now, I’ve known for many years. I hesitated to say these words to you now, for I certainly don’t want to strike fear or despair in your heart....but as I have been saying: we MUST be prepared for all things. And now I have to say it very, very strongly. WE MUST BE PREPARED FOR ALL THINGS.

This past year has given evidence in so many ways to all that I have said to you. We have witnessed the enormous storms, the floods, the fires, the earthquakes, the riots in the streets, the breaking down of political structures...the separation and uprising of fanatical religious and ideological factions. Those who seek world dominance spend billions of dollars and countless hours plotting ways to plant seeds of hate in the minds of all who will open their hearts to those seeds - and to convince every one of us that someone who looks or thinks differently than us...seeks to destroy us. They want us to fear each other. They want us to hate each other. They want us to be ready and willing to kill each other. Then, as we have become so frightened and our world has become so chaotic that we feel that there is NO answer, no way to solve the problems of our world....those people – the ones who CREATED this – intend to step forward and “rescue us”.

I have been telling you for many years, now, and I repeat it again here and now: the ultimate result of all of this IS World Peace. The ultimate result of all of this IS life in a world in which there is increased awareness of the value of Love...the value of each other. The knowing of those values is the natural result of experiencing a time in which we are required to cling tightly to each other....to learn discernment.....to know who is trustworthy....to experience occasions when we willingly, even joyfully, offer the last of what we have to another or experience the humility of receiving from another who has little to give.

These are not easy times. There are people in every country of the world who go to bed hungry, and as we move forward in these times, there will be extreme shortages of food. We will experience times in which there will be breakdowns in our communication systems – our cell phones, our computers, even our automobiles, won't be useable for periods of time.

We need to be prepared for all things. We need to be able to live through a time in which food might not be available to us in our stores, and if it WERE available, the cost of it would be far beyond our means....and to a time in which people would kill for whatever we might have. So I am STILL begging you – please....store whatever kinds of supplies you might need. PREPARE FOR WHATEVER MIGHT HAPPEN, for we ARE experiencing and will continue to experience in these times all manner of things that would cause us to need to have supplies on hand....OR else, be forced to suffer hunger, thirst, and lack of basic needs.

I recommend that ALL people have in their homes a means by which they can protect themselves and their families, for there shall be people who would do harm to you and your loved ones in order to take what you have or because they have been taught to believe that you are their enemy. I can hear some of you now saying, “I would never strike out at someone. I would just tell them to take what I have.” And I can hear you say, “I wouldn't want the karma of having done harm to another person.” So I must ask you THIS question: What do you think would cause the most karma for you....doing harm to a person who might take the last of your food and leave your child to starve to death, or doing harm to a person who might seek to ravage or kill you and/or your loved ones....OR....might there be greater Spiritual consequences if you were to stand by meekly and watch such things happen without trying to help them? Your answer to this question should help you decide whether or not it is right for YOU to take measures to protect yourself and your loved ones.

I would never recommend to ANY person that they intentionally do harm to any other person, but I STRONGLY urge all of my students and all who come to me for counsel...that you stand strong in honoring and valuing your own Being and the Beings of those whom you love. That includes being willing to protect yourself and those whom you love from anyone who would do evil to you.

We are required in this time to learn discernment. Spirit has been sending people into our lives who offer us opportunities to learn discernment. Spirit has brought people who originally appeared to be of good intent, but then proved themselves to be unworthy of our trust. Those people entered our lives in order to give us the opportunity to recognize lack of honor when we see it. I certainly would never tell you that you should fail to offer aid to another who is in true need, but I want to remind you to use discernment.

There WILL be people who come to you hungry, and you who have carefully been storing supplies will be challenged to share what you've gathered with someone whom you may not even know. Be discerning. If you deem them to be in true need and with no intention to bring harm, then ask the person what they can do in exchange for food. BARTER with them....for it is a metaphysical tenet that there must be an equal exchange of giving and receiving. Otherwise, resentment can and WILL begin to grow because you're giving from your own precious resources and getting nothing back, and the receiver of your generosity will feel as though they are receiving "charity". As I've said many times, if you offer "charity" to another, they'll eventually come to resent you - they feel inferior to you because YOU have and they have not (for we as humans feel deep shame when we cannot provide to our basic needs). By allowing the person in need to "earn" that plate of food, you are aiding them in retaining their dignity AND you are receiving something at the same time....and when the flow of giving and receiving is in balance, resentment cannot grow.

I will be discussing these matters further as we go, and if you have questions or comments about the subject of this newsletter, please do not hesitate to write to me (at info@dixieveterian.com). I can't promise to answer every email – there just isn't enough time. But I WILL seek to address your questions in future newsletters.

During the month of March, people are likely to be extremely impetuous. Many will fall in love and marry after only knowing their partner for a very short period of time. It is NOT a good time to get married this month – I recommend you wait until after April 30th, because things begun in this energy seldom last very long. Be careful about impetuous buying. It's very easy in the energies of this time to make purchases that you'll later regret and to incur debt that might be difficult to repay. Also, we'll all be having the urge to clean out closets and drawers and to get rid of "stuff". Be careful during this cleaning-out time, because this urge is so strong that it could cause us to throw away or give away possessions that we later realize we really needed or wanted. Just try as much as possible to curb your impetuosity.

I also recommend that you do not sign important contracts this month, unless of course you absolutely must. Agreements made during this time will have a greater likelihood of falling through or being dishonored. For instance, if you agree now to make a loan to someone, the odds are that the loan may not be repaid at all or at least will not be repaid within the time originally agreed upon.

People are likely to make sudden changes that could have long-term effects. Be careful. The world is in chaos, and our lives could easily go into chaos as the result of changes we make based on the intensity of emotions that might pass within an hour. You could get angry and quit your job, and then an hour later really regret your actions. We are all going to be prone to over-reactions during this month.

Many people will want to quit their jobs. They'll think they have to sell their house or let it go into foreclosure...or file bankruptcy, etc., etc. Emotions and situations will appear MUCH, much larger than they actually are, and it will be difficult to see answers that will be obvious to us once we pass through this intensification. We will experience magnified energy throughout the month of March. Just hold on tight – don't make any changes without seriously thinking them through. Most problems will work themselves out, or the means for resolution will be revealed. Just relax as much as you can and pray a lot. I mean that. Call on Spirit. Ask for help to see alternatives that might be available. Remember that it's all in Purpose, that it all comes to good.....

AND.....

Stay focused on the Light....

Dixie Yeterian
